PROTECTION OF MEN NIGHT TO WORK IS PART OF AGREEMENT*between Organizer Feeney of Miners' Union and
Sheriff Shaw.*WILL CAUSE INCREASES*In the Number of Men in the Mines
Who Have Been Deterred from Returning Through Fear of Attack; Mail Shipments Show Weekly Gains.*One condition of the agreement ached between Sheriff Shaw and Organizer Feeney at Brownsville yesterday being that every man desiring to return to work at the mines is to be allowed to do so without interference in the exercise of that right will it is believed, be fundamental in assuring material increases in the working forces of the plants which have been in partial operation during the progress of the strike.*It is known that many workers at different plants affected by the strike have been willing to return to work but have been prevented by fear that they would be made the object of attack in some form by those who do not favor resumption at this time. The fact that they are now to be assured sodoms from intimidation under the treatment reached yesterday will do much to dispel the fear which has kept many men idle who have urgent need of employment to provide for their families.*In addition to according men the right to work without molestation the agreement will the authorities permit meetings but places a ban on arsons from one plant to another from any plant to another place of meeting. Any alleged irregularities on the part of deputies or members of the State Police are to be completely investigated by the sheriff at the same time it was made plain that the complete withdrawal of the sheriff's forces granted the organizers at the Merriestown meeting yesterday afternoon. Organizers Feeney and Bitner plainly told the strikers that they must refrain from the slightest semblance of disorder; and adhere strictly to the regulations agreed upon at the conference with Sheriff Shaw and Captain Smith.*The situation otherwise was unchanged this morning. Railroad representatives indicate gains in shipments of coal and coke. These are comparatively slight from day to day but are evidence of the slow progress toward resumption of activity on a larger scale.*For the week ending last Saturday the shipments over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad showed an acre of cars, or five per cent as compared with the preceding week. Shipments over the Southwest Branch of the Pennsylvania yesterday were 169 cars of coal and 164 of coke. Placements are 802 coal and 146 coke cars. On the old Monongahela Division shipments were 21 cars of coal, 30 of coke, placements 83 coal and 32 coke cars. On the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie cars of coal were shipped, no coke.
The Monongahela placed 34 cars for the Pennsylvania and 42 for the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie besides moving 20 cars of coal from the former company.*Coal production in the Indian Creek tively selected a site 3,600 by 2,000 its purchase. He plans to build a mile and a half track and to erect two stands, each one-fourth of a mile long which will seat 100,000 persons. Parking space will be provided for 20,000

Garr reported today that the sale of air mail stamps at the local post office for the month of April was $2,211 while for March it was only $1,000. In other words the sales during April were 65 times greater than those in March, and with good prospects in sight for May.*Mont McCormick Returns.
Mont W. McCormick returned to the Westmoreland County jail at an early hour yesterday morning to appear for sentence on a charge of robbing and entering a livery stable of which he was found guilty at a recent term of court and called to appear at the time for sentence.
He was having been at liberty on bail it is understood that McCormick had been in Oklahoma. He will likely be tried for sentence at an early date.*WIFE OF ENGINEER occurred yesterday morning at Fair-hope when the engine of Baltimore & the fact that Mrs. Alice Kathryn Con-who was killed and their daughter

WE doubt that you were ever before offered a gas range on this basis. Then why do we make the offer? Because it's the best way we can convince you that a "Lorain-equipped" New Process Range does all that we know it will do.

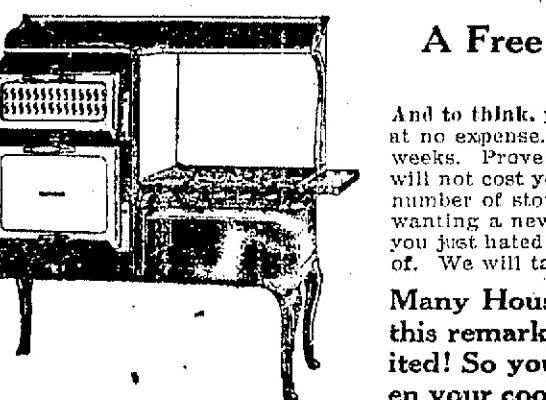

And there's another reason. Just as soon as your friends learn how superbly delicious your meals are—how perfectly, and evenly brown your roasts and pastries always appear—and envy the many spare hours you have for pleasure and other household duties, then they, too, will want a "Lorain-equipped" New Process.

Wherever "Lorain-equipped" New Process Gas Ranges are sold many more stoves of the same type are soon sold in the same neighborhood. Women have read about them, heard about them, want them—because, you see, they're different.

NEW PROCESS GAS RANGES WITH LORAIN OVEN HEAT REGULATOR

Why is a "Lorain-Equipped" New Process Range Different?

It's different because it does all the things that other stoves do, and does many things that no other stove can do. It cooks a whole meal in the oven at one time. You can boil, stew, roast and bake in the one oven, at one time. It cooks without watching. You can sweep, wash, go shopping, or visiting for two, three, four, five or six hours while the meal is cooking. You can preserve fruits and vegetables (right in the glass jars placed in this wonderful oven) so easily and quickly that it will be almost fun.

A Free 30 Day Trial and Demonstration in Your Own Kitchen

And to think, you can now prove these almost unbelievable statements at no expense. Prove them right in your own kitchen for four whole weeks. Prove them, or send the range back and the whole transaction will not cost you one cent. Your time of acceptance is limited. The number of stoves we can sell on this basis is limited. You've been wanting a new gas range ever since you moved into your home—but you just hated to take a chance on a new one that you couldn't be sure of. We will take the chance. You take the pleasure and the profit.

Many Housewives have already taken advantage of this remarkable "FREE Trial" offer. Our supply is limited! So you'd better act N-O-W—if you want to lighten your cooking and baking burdens this Summer.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, MAY 3, 1922.

YOUR DUTY TO SCOUTING.

Every father or mother of a boy would have derived lasting benefit had they been at the Library on Monday evening to hear the talk on "Scouting" by R. F. Seymour, field executive.

They would have learned that Scouting is not a mere fad but that it has acquired an importance and permanence that rates it as one of the most beneficial agencies ever brought into existence to supply a want in the life of every boy in his formative years.

They would also have learned what Scouting is doing to give the right direction to the habits, thoughts, ambitions, acts and characters of boys as to influence them to give first place in their lives to the things that are essential to good citizenship. They would have heard something of the reasons why the comradeships of Scouting, its life in the open, its exaltation of service and its stimulus to honor and fair play appeal to the best that is in boys.

They would have been dispossessed of the idea that the Boy Scout organization is militaristic in its tendencies, but is given this form to make its administration easier and more effective and for the purpose of inculcating a wholesome discipline and inspiring respect for law and authority. They would have heard much of what Scouting is doing to stimulate boys to greater proficiency in their tasks to be less selfish and more willing to do things because it is right to do them rather than in expectation of being rewarded.

Parents who are perplexed in the matter of determining what their boy shall follow as his life's work would have heard from Mr. Seymour how the varied activities of Scouting tend to develop latent talents or the bent of a boy and, thereby, make it easier for both himself and his parents to start him on the right road to success in life. In like manner parents would have gained informing knowledge of the extent of the Scout movement in the United States; how it has grown to more than 17,000 troops with a membership in excess of 400,000, and that it has drawn to it the voluntary services of thousands of men as scouts, masters, scout commissioners and other officers who are giving freely, even selflessly, of their time, opportunities and means to promote the splendid work.

These and many other things relating to Scouting as a supplement to the church, the home and the school were set forth so clearly that no normal man or woman of mature age, and conscious of their responsibility, to their own boy in particular and to all boys in general, could have listened to Mr. Seymour's address without having been impressed with the tremendous possibilities of Scouting as one of the best agencies yet devised for helping boys to become good and useful citizens.

While Scouting has become firmly established in Connellsville, and has made slow but substantial progress, what has been done is but a small part of what could be possible of accomplishment if the movement had the interested support of every father or friend of boys. The present enrollment of 200 Scouts, distributed between nine troops in as many different churches, could be multiplied several times, and should be, if Scouting is to do for the boys of Connellsville and vicinity what is entirely within the capabilities and power of the organization to do when given the degree and kind of support it should receive.

The membership of the nine troops is only an insignificant part of the boys of Connellsville who are eligible for membership among those circumstances to become associated with the organization. Aside from these there are a number of boys in the community who would be glad to become Scouts and who, because of their circumstances and surroundings, are perhaps most in need of the influence and training provided by Scouting.

In the outlying districts and smaller towns there are scores of boys who would make excellent Scout material and they would eagerly form themselves into troops. If scouts masters were available and the necessary facilities provided,

In view of the needs for the extension of Scouting in Connellsville and in the surrounding section, and the benefits of incalculable value it will bring to the boys in shaping their characters as men of tomorrow, the opportunity for adults to have a part in such a fine work should make an appeal that cannot be resisted.

More men are needed as members of the Local Council. Others are needed to serve as scouts masters and every adult in the neighborhood is needed as a leader and founder of a council.

Scouting. That is your duty if you want to be fair to your own and other boys.

If you do your own part to have your mail right before mailing it you will help make all the weeks postal improvement weeks.

Organizer Feeney can give force and effect to his declaration that the United Mine Workers is an American organization by starting a class in Americanization among the 54 persons in jail in Uniontown who are charged with plotting at Tower Hill No. 1, only one of whom is reported to have taken out naturalization papers.

It has been reserved to anti-militaristic China to show the world that the war to end wars has not yet been fought.

Always a Larger Goal AheadBy S. W. STRAUSS, President American Society for Thrift.

A man whose name is written high on the scroll of honor among American industrial leaders was asked to give the secret of his success, and his reply was:

"I have not succeeded. No real man ever succeeds. There is always a larger goal ahead."

Success comes only where there is wholesome discontent. The man who is perfectly satisfied with his place in life can rest assured that he will find no higher sphere.

There must be the impelling force of ambition if one is to rise. The contented man lives for today; the ambitious man lives for tomorrow. He is willing to make sacrifices, to endure hardships, to study, to plan, and toil while others rest, that he may gain a higher place in the affluence of men.

It is in this way that thrift serves one of its most exalted purposes, for only through saving can the first step toward a broader life be taken.

The man who is walking the path-way of mediocrity knows that only by conserving his every resource and by the development of greater efficiency will he be able to reach more useful fields of work.

He must build the structure of his career with patience, diligence and industry.

The men who are doing big things in the business life of America today are mostly those who came up from the ranks. In their own minds they are not real successes, for they have not yet reached the goal of their ambitions. The same impulses that drove them upward from the humble positions are still driving them onward today toward the accomplishment of even mightier things. But, first of all, before they achieved their first small success, they learned the value of constructive thrift in all things.

They would have been dispossessed of the idea that the Boy Scout organization is militaristic in its tendencies, but is given this form to make its administration easier and more effective and for the purpose of inculcating a wholesome discipline and inspiring respect for law and authority. But, first of all, before they achieved their first small success, they learned the value of constructive thrift in all things.

They would have been dispossessed of the idea that the Boy Scout organization is militaristic in its tendencies, but is given this form to make its administration easier and more effective and for the purpose of inculcating a wholesome discipline and inspiring respect for law and authority. They would have heard much of what Scouting is doing to stimulate boys to greater proficiency in their tasks to be less selfish and more willing to do things because it is right to do them rather than in expectation of being rewarded.

Parents who are perplexed in the matter of determining what their boy shall follow as his life's work would have heard from Mr. Seymour how the varied activities of Scouting tend to develop latent talents or the bent of a boy and, thereby, make it easier for both himself and his parents to start him on the right road to success in life. In like manner parents would have gained informing knowledge of the extent of the Scout movement in the United States; how it has grown to more than 17,000 troops with a membership in excess of 400,000, and that it has drawn to it the voluntary services of thousands of men as scouts, masters, scout commissioners and other officers who are giving freely, even selflessly, of their time, opportunities and means to promote the splendid work.

The men who are doing big things in the business life of America today are mostly those who came up from the ranks. In their own minds they are not real successes, for they have not yet reached the goal of their ambitions. The same impulses that drove them upward from the humble positions are still driving them onward today toward the accomplishment of even mightier things. But, first of all, before they achieved their first small success, they learned the value of constructive thrift in all things.

KIDNEY-BLADDER Troubles HAVE TO GO

Clogged up kidney deposits are dissolved and the toxins (poisons) completely driven out. "Your very life," says Dr. Carey, "depends upon the perfect functioning of your kidneys." Don't neglect them. When your back aches, you have rheumatism, headaches, bad stomach and tongue, aching bladder troubles, cloudy urine, rheumatism, puffy eyes, specks, or any other tendency to night sweats, you are probably clogged. Kidney trouble in its worst form may be stealing upon you. Never mind the failures of the past but insist upon having at once a bottle of Dr. Carey's Kidney Root Pills. (Dr. Carey's Kidney Root Pills are sold at Connellsville Drug Co., C. Roy Metal and any reliable druggist can supply you.) Kidney and Bladder troubles don't wear away, they will grow worse, stay longer, and become more and more certainly. Every good druggist has been authorized to refund purchase price on fine bottle to all who state they have received no benefit—Advertisement.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but effective, and the safest on the market—absolutely instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Is any cure the best in the opinion of the trade? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong acids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lazy" and heavy. The tablets are delicious and perk up the spirits. 15c and 30c.

SWAMP CONVERTED TO POULTRY YARD BY DUNBAR MAN

DUNBAR, May 8.—To Charles H. Wilson belongs the credit of reclaiming a frog pond and transforming it into a profitable poultry yard where fine chickens are enjoying themselves and paying their owner for his enterprise. Fifty years ago this pond, near Bunker crossing on Franklin road, was so infested with frogs that the vicinity was popularly known as "Frogtown." The houses of then Seuire Jessie Bunker and James and Mary Burton, the latter later becoming Mrs. James Denton, were the only buildings. Later the late A. B. Smiley built a residence east of the Baltimore & Ohio road, and then James Ord located west of that track at the very edge of the frogpond. Thus made changes and other houses were located on the slopes therabout. Then the Pennsylvania road was built, confining the pond between the tracks. Here it remained for years the home of the harbingers of spring. Mr. Wilson moved into a nearby house, and at once conceived the idea of making a poultry yard out of the pond. Now the pond has disappeared, the stream that made it being confined to a narrow channel, and a happier lot of chickens could not be found.

David A. Keffer is having his residence along Ferguson road painted, and is also having a fine poultry house erected preparatory to breeding pedigree stock.

The township road from the east end of the pavement in the borough to the Harper school house has been put into prime condition for the application of whitewash, and it is probable that whitewash will be applied to the surface will be applied within a short time.

S. H. Gillespie of Pechin has an exceptionally fine yard of Thompson slate barred rocks, of which he is very proud.

Cokers Announce Line-up
For First Game Scheduled
With Irwin Nine May 13

Practically Same Outfit Which Closed Last Season Will Be Here.

NEW BATTERY SECURED

By James M. Driscoll
Sporting Editor.

The Connellsville Independents are all set to go on Saturday, May 13 when the semi-pro baseball season will open here. The club has its players all signed and the line-up presents a quality of strength which is expected to match that of any other first-class outfit. If a weak spot develops the management is determined to put in a stronger link and to make this city's baseball team the talk of independent circles.

The opener will be played with Irwin, the same aggregation which came here for the initial clash of the Cokers last season. Connellsville fans, saw their team annihilated in that contest and the sum crowd will be on hand this year to look for a greater strength. Irwin, however, will also present a stronger front.

A new catcher and two new pitchers are in the fold, together with a second baseman and a new outfielder.

Patterson will be found at the mid-field and Ware will be behind the bat. Kozar and Dunaway will both pitch, alternating games.

Shomo, Stauffer and Ritterman, who completed the 1921 season at short, first and third, respectively, will again be in the game, and "Hobie" Fisher will be stationed in left. Other outfielders are Francis, Yanchus and Wayman.

Cards advertising the game have already been placed and fans are beginning to evidence new interest in the team. Attendance was good last season as long as the team won and if that feature is to be a magnet, the park should be filled each Saturday this year.

The Poplar Grove Klarduels and the North End Range Riders played a game at Poplar Grove just night, the Klarduels winning 6-2. Another game will be played on Monday, May 8.

All persons desiring to try out for the Tornado baseball team are invited to meet at Palladio's store Friday evening at 7 o'clock when an organization will be cued.

In a game Monday afternoon on the "Y" Field, West Side, the Dago Spacials defeated the Junior All Stars by a score of 15-5.

The Pirates were unable to check the Reds yesterday and three pitchers were used in an endeavor to stem the tide. The final result was 9-2.

The first City League baseball game will be played Saturday, May 6 when the Baltimore & Ohio baseball team and the Fayette Bakers clash. The contest will be staged at Fayette Field. The league opener will mark the beginning of active amateur ball playing in this city, as from that time on the teams will play regularly twice a week and within a short time the Church League will get under way.

For once the tennis fans are anxious to have a rain. The courts would benefit greatly and this group is now on the side of those who feel a down pour is needed.

The horseshoe game is getting underway. Members of the W. A. Edie Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Church are practicing regularly to get their arms in shape.

The tennis courts of the Christian Endeavor of the Methodist Protestant Church are to be enlarged and improved this season. Work is to begin immediately. The courts will be lengthened.

The Geography of Concert Broadcasting

California has "fallen for" radio broadcasting harder than any other state.

Ohio comes second, and Pennsylvania and New York follow close behind.

These facts are gleaned from a bulletin on the geography of radio broadcasting issued by the National Geographic Society.

"Licenses issued for broadcasting music and entertainment features have now sanctioned stations covering practically the entire United States," says the bulletin. "Such stations exist in two-thirds of the states, and some of the commonwealths are literally peppered with them. The desire to contribute to the entertainment of the populace through the ether seems to be most widespread in California. Of the 167 licenses issued up to the middle of April specifically for the sending of music and entertainment features at 360 meters, 37, or more than one-third of the total number, were for California locations."

"Fourteen licenses went to Ohio, which has the second largest number of stations, 12 to Pennsylvania and 11 to New York. Such outlying states as Washington and Texas had eight and five stations, respectively. Minnesota had four, New Mexico two and Maine one. With the exception of the Dakotas, the only states without broadcasting stations for music west of the Mississippi were the mountain states, Arizona, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Idaho and Montana—and all these can be reached by the stations east and west of them. In the south only four states are without such stations: Florida, Mississippi, South Carolina and Kentucky.

In New England only three states are without stations for sending concerts, Rhode Island, Vermont and New Hampshire. But these stationless states, like those of the west, are commanded nightly by other waves from across their borders.

"The number of licenses issued in a state is not a true index, however, to that state's importance in the broadcasting field. Between 80 and 100 of the licenses so far issued are held by local electrical supply shops and similar concerns, and many of them send only once a week and with rather weak transmitting sets. The United States—and sections of Canada and Mexico—is really covered adequately by broadcasting stations in a dozen or fewer locations. Among the most important if these are the stations in or near Springfield, Mass., New York City, Schenectady, N. Y., Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago, Kansas City, Dallas, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

The waves from the great majority of the local stations broadcasting concerns are not heard beyond a radius of a few miles because they use only about 100 watts or one-tenth of a kilowatt of power. In contrast, most of the leading broadcasting stations, which are heard sometimes at distances of 1,000 to 2,000 miles, use from one to one and one-half kilowatts.

"The station which has received official permission to use the greatest power in transmitting concerts is located at Newark, N. J. It is licensed to use up to three kilowatts, but normally does not reach this maximum. A Pittsburgh station is licensed to use two kilowatts, and a station at Schenectady, N. Y., one and one-half kilowatts. The experimental station of the Naval Radio Service at Anacostia in the edge of Washington, D. C., also uses one and one-half kilowatts.

"The United States is practically alone in the magnitude and type of its broadcasting development. Broadcasting reached considerable proportions first in Germany, but on a different basis. This German government broadcast grand opera from Berlin and then added reports on market conditions, stock quotations and governmental activities. In England the post office is sending out concerts from a few points. A closer approach to American broadcasting methods is being made now in France where either 'concerts' are becoming commoner than elsewhere in the eastern hemisphere. In no other countries besides the United States, however, have large numbers of private companies, institutions and individuals been licensed to broadcast."

NOTES of the DIAMOND

The Brooklyn club has released Paul Schreiber to the Saginaw Mint Julep club.

The Pittsburgh club has shipped Pitcher Earl Whitehill back to the Birmingham club.

The Rochester club has turned Outfielder Sam Vaudry back to the London club of the Mint league.

The Boston Red Sox have turned Pitcher Tom (Zip) Sloan back to the Hartford club of the Eastern league.

Manager Fred Mitchell has made it known he is in favor of Clark Griffith's plan for sticking to Florida and the Braves have practically completed arrangements to return to St. Petersburg, Fla., in the spring of 1923.

The Boone, the New Orleans out-fielder, has a batting pose resembling that of the late "Stockless" Joe Jackson and he promises to make a fight for a berth with the Giants. He led the Southern association last season.

CHAPTER V.

The Bitter Cup.

Hardly had they topped the rise behind which the cache was situated when the full force of the wind caught them. A blizzard was sweeping up, and it grew in strength all that morning, until by noon it was almost a hurricane. They pushed on doggedly until about one o'clock, avoiding the temptation to rest at the auxiliary cache which had been established along this part of the road.

At one o'clock they came to an empty cache and horse stable, which had been built in anticipation of winter development work, and had formed the hub of many radiating reconnoitering roads. They had come no more than six miles, and it was still a good fifteen into Clayton. By this time the blizzard had increased to an intense violence, driving great sheets of snow along the road. It was impossible to face such a hurricane any longer.

"We'll have to wait till this lets up a bit, Molly," said Wilton.

The little shack, hardly more than four walls and a roof, was unoccupied. Wilton broke down the door and went in. He found the key of the stable, unlocked it, and unfastened the dogs. He drove them in and shut the door. Then he took the blankets out of the sleigh and went into the shack.

To build a fire was impossible, but they ate biscuit and tinned beef, washing it down with water.

"I'll have to let up soon," said Wilton. "If it doesn't, we'll just have to face it again."

A dozen times he had regretted having yielded to her insistence in accompanying him. Traveling in that weather was hard on a man, let alone a girl, said Molly. He looked at her in wonder as she saw her apparent unconcern, the courage with which she faced the difficulties of the journey. But his fears were centered chiefly on Kitty. Suppose as couldn't go on? Suppose he couldn't be at the shareholder meeting on the morrow?

Toward the middle of the afternoon the wind seemed to have lessened, though the driven snow still swept in blinding clouds along the road. It might be possible to reach Clayton soon after nightfall.

"But we might try again, Molly," he said.

"I think so, Will," she answered. "He caught me to him. 'You are the bravest woman I know,' he said, kissing her. 'We must succeed—for Kitty's sake!'

She kissed him back. "Of course we shall, Will, don't," she answered.

Wilton went into the stable and called the dogs. They were lying with their noses together, and at his entrance sprang to their feet with menacing growls. They knew very well what his advent portended, and it was plain that their wolfish temper was thoroughly aroused.

Wilton had handled a refractory pack once before. He knew that quick action was necessary. He stepped forward, and, as the gleaming jaws gaped at him, and the animals prepared to spring, snarling and uttering with rage, he brought his whip across the leader's nose with all his strength.

Immediately, with maddened yells, the pack leaped at him. Wilton swung sight and leapt with the whip, and then, retreating till his back was against the wall of the shack, he laid about him with the shortened stock.

With gaping jaws and wicked, bloodshot eyes, the pack came on again and again, leaping at him, tearing at his clothes; one sank its fangs into his right hand, and, as he freed himself with a smashing blow, the others were upon him sideways.

In an instant he was struggling with his hands bound against the heavy bodies that bore him back, shielding his throat, thrusting the whistling stock into the red, cavernous jaws, while the anguish from his wrenched shoulder almost made him scream with pain.

Everything was swimming round him. Time had dimmed down. Their bellowing howls grew fainter in his ears. Mechanically he kept his right hand upon his throat. The last torn from the last torn, grotesquely in front of

AND THEY SLEPT "UPSTAIRS"

Childish Frank Not So Enjoyable as Youngsters Imagined It Was Going to Be

An Indianapolis woman is fond of telling a story about her childhood days. There were several children in the family, and they went to school with other children, perhaps a tribe better off as to this world's goods than they were. At any rate, the other children were always talking about their upstairs. And there was no upstairs to the cottage where the Indianapolis woman's family lived—it was only a cottage. But children, they had to be able to say with cool disdain when they went to school: "Why, upstairs where we sleep—"

"Well, walk," said Wilton.

And, going out of the shanty, he fastened the cord of the sleigh that held Joey's body, and took it in his wounded hand.

"Will, it's impossible!"

"It may be. But I'll try. I can't face Kitty otherwise."

Over the new snow the journeying was not so difficult in their snowshoes, but the drag of the sleigh—up the hills and across the corrugations proved almost impossible. Their progress was indefinitely slow. The night came down and shut them in. And the nightmare of delirium clouded Wilton's brain, peopling the world with phantoms. He lived over again scenes of the past, and always Joe was of them. It was a night of unmitigated horror to Molly.

When mother came home she found out what had happened. She climbed the attic stairs, and there under the dust and dirt and whortons and embowels were the two bodies. So just to punish the children for their disobedience mother made them sleep up there a few nights in the hot weather, until they were glad they had no "upstairs."

They had tolled up their highest hill, and as they reached the summit they saw the sweetest sight that they had ever seen. For far away was Clayton, over the plain, with its ugly streets and bare, new houses, and the gaunt station buildings, roundhouses and locomotive shops.

They were white as shrouded bodies, besmeared with grime, and Wilton was caked with the blood that had oozed from his wounds and frozen.

"One last try, Molly," he said, "and then they can do what they like with me. But it's you who pulled that trick out of mine!"

But as he spoke he slipped to the ground, and leaned his shoulders against the sleigh.

"Seven miles yet, and the meeting's at nine," he said. "I can't make it, Molly. I've tried. I've fallen short."

A little later, Molly, tried again. "I'm going to sleep in the sunshine."

Molly stooped over him, and it was a harder thing than she had ever done to try to drive the driven man further. But she knew that, having staked all, Wilton would be content with no less than the sacrifice of all.

"Remember Joe, dear," she said, and Kitty."

He tried to rise to his feet, but could not. Wilton's mind was quite clear, but his body, driven by will, had collapsed suddenly like a worn-out horse.

Three horsemen were riding over the plain toward them. They watched them in a dull apathy. Even Molly hardly cared any more, except for Wilton. And he had done all that a man could do.

As the men came nearer it could be seen that they were of the Mounted Police. In the foremost Molly recognized Qualls, the Inspector who was in command of the detachment at Clayton. —TO BE CONTINUED.

STORIES OF GREAT INDIANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

CHIEF LOGAN, THE CAYUCA; HIS IMMORTAL SPEECH

APPEAL TO ANY white man to say if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry and he gave him meat; if ever he came cold and naked and he clothed him not? During the course of the last long and bloody war, Logan remained idle in his camp, an advocate for peace. Such was my love for the whites that my countrymen pointed at me and said, "Logan is the friend of the white man." I had even thought to have lived with you for the injuries of one man.

"Colonel Creasy, the last spring, in cold blood and impure, murdered all the relations of Logan, not even sparing my women and children. There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it. I have killed many. I have fully glutted my vengeance. For my country I rejoice at the beams of peace; but do not harbor a thought that mine is the joy of fear. Lorna never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one!"

What American has not at some time in his school career recited from his reader that speech, not realizing the historical inaccuracy of some of the statements nor the fact that the elder was doing a great injustice to Col. Michael Cresap, a daring borderer and a brave officer of the Virginia riflemen during the Revolution? For the man who was guilty of the murder was Daniel Grousewa, a dissolute trader.

But even such errors in fact cannot detract from the greatness of the speech and of the man, nor from the tragedy of his life. For Logan (Tah-gab-jute)—literally: "His Eyelashes Stick Out"; figuratively: "Spying" was unwavering in his friendship to the whites until the massacre of his people in 1770 sent him on the warpath, raging like a wild animal. He was the leading figure in Lord Dunmore's war, one of the bloodiest in frontier history.

Occasionally his better instincts prevailed during that war. Once he saved the life of Simon Kenton, the famous scout, whom Kentucky's old friend, Simon Girty, the "white renegade," had failed.

He had been an intemperate drinker before the Grousewa murder. After that he became an utter scoundrel, only added to his cruelty. In 1780 his nephew killed him during a drunken brawl. His wife survived him, but there were no children. So his mournful statement, "there runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature," was true to the last.

Gas Used.

Not counting debits in Congress Americans used 319,988,000 cubic feet of artificial gas last year.

This is an achievement, comparing it with a generation ago when mother had to wash the smoky chimneys of the kerosene oil lamps and trim their wicks daily.

In about one more generation our only heating and lighting will be by electricity. A copper mile is a good legacy for grandchildren.

OBSERVE EQUALITY IN RINGS

Up-to-Date Custom Is for Bride to Equip Man of Her Choice With Wedding Bands.

Custom has decreed that when a man receives from the woman he loves a promise that she will be his wife, he should forthwith buy her a ring. It is an excellent custom, according to the jeweler.

Most modern and modern lovers have observed it, but modern lovers are going one better. Instead of one ring, two are bought, and they are not both for the lady. Jack and Jill together wear the sign of their engagement.

Equality of sex in voting and in the eyes of the law is responsible for this new idea, according to the Louisville Courier-Journal. For, mark you, two parties wear the sign. No modern self-respecting Jill would allow her Jack to outdo his own finger.

And when the plain gold circlet fails, again ring equality is carried out.

It is no new custom for men to wear wedding rings. They have done so for ages. But it is a new idea that they should not have to pay for them. The up-to-date bride insists on doing her share, and buys the ring for her groom, while he purchases the sign of her new estate.

Irish Landlords Get Out.

Lord Gough, like many another Irish landowner, is leaving his home in the old country. Lough Curra castle in County Galway has lately been dismantled and the old old contents disposed of.

The castle, which stands overlooking the Lough, is wonderfully picturesque. It was built for Lord Gort by Hugh Husk at a cost of $40,000 and was purchased by the Goughs after the Irish fusing of 1847, when the viscount was guilty of the murder was Daniel Grousewa, a dissolute trader.

But even such errors in fact cannot detract from the greatness of the speech and of the man, nor from the tragedy of his life. For Logan (Tah-gab-jute)—literally: "His Eyelashes Stick Out"; figuratively: "Spying" was unwavering in his friendship to the whites until the massacre of his people in 1770 sent him on the warpath, raging like a wild animal. He was the leading figure in Lord Dunmore's war, one of the bloodiest in frontier history.

His wife survived him, but there were no children. So his mournful statement, "there runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature," was true to the last.

Support of Royalty.

At the installation ceremony of King Faisal of Iraq nothing had been left undone in producing the atmosphere necessary for such an occasion in the country of the Caliphs of Baghdad. The throne—or rather the chair of state—was a masterpiece in solid gold, inlaid with pearls and diamonds. The backrest was a lion rampant, the arms were a lion rampant holding a sword.

The above drawing shows a pink and white infant's sweater coat. The collar and cuffs are white, and there is a border of white too, down the front and around the waist. The shoulders are decorated with colored stripes. The collar and cuffs have two sets of woolly buttons in place. The lower part of the coat is finished in a sort of close plait.

The Woman of Pulse.

Once a rarity, is now to be observed and admired upon every hand. In deed, no other woman can flourish long in the midst of the modern, complicated life. In the home, in business, in social life, the woman who is serene and confident wins, while the nervous, fidgeted individual wastes her talents and gets nowhere. Of course, pulse is dependent mainly upon sound health and steady nerves. If you feel that you are being kept back in this way, why not turn to that great woman's remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which was manufactured from a thorough understanding of the nervous system of women?—Advertiser.

Automatic Refrigerators Save Foods

Pay the Butcher and Grocer less. Food costs too much to let it spoil in a poor Refrigerator.

Even if ice cost as much as $1.00 per hundred pounds, its waste would mean nothing as compared with FOODS that will average to cost around $30.00 per hundred pounds.

We need but to realize these things when buying a new refrigerator—or even continuing with the old one. In the Automatic—which in our opinion is the best refrigerator ever made—you have no waste in ice because of the honest construction. There are eight (8) walls of perfect insulation.

You have no waste in foods because of the Automatic system of cold dry air circulation. This keeps your foodstuffs cold, dry, sweet and wholesome. No danger from mildew, "sweating," foods becoming "soft" or tainted.

Besides, the Automatic Water Cooling System, which insures chilled, pure water every hour of the day or night, is only obtainable in this best-of-all refrigerator.

Knit & Outerwear Cosy and Cute for the Kiddies

New knitted models for the Kiddies make their appearance every day. There are sweaters, of course, jerseys and dresses, caps and booties, in items and stockings. The greatest variety is seen, perhaps in the sweater coat. Here, variations in collar or cuff, border or belt, seem to make an endless variety.

Circus Day Now Topic of Hour For Small Boys and Grown-Ups

It's the John Robinson circus that's the topic of the hour for small boys of six as well as for those of 60. The billboards, burns and dead walls are announcing with all the bluster of pictorial art its coming. And already preparations are being made for the one big holiday event of the year. About the time the elephant is making his rounds on the morning of Friday, May 12, the first of the circus trains will be pulling into the railroad yards.

Much is promised by the management of the John Robinson circus this season. The show has reached such a size that it is causing the railroads considerable uneasiness to handle the train and, in short, if they were any longer it would be sacked. European agents have sacked the Old World in quest for novelties. The question of safety was not considered when it concerned the engaging of performances of ability. New acts and fees will tend to eradicate the falacy that "all circuses are alike."

The riding display will be headed by such equestrian notables as Joe Hough, Madame Rudolph, Miss Becht and Irene Montgomery. The famous Nelson family of acrobats—the fourth generation of this celebrated act—with top the scores of stage and ring offerings, while the Nelson Sisters will captivate all with their aerial wire ballet—a series of whirling dances on the swaying steel thread. Fifty clowns will win chuckles and howls of glee from the children and those of us who still cherish youth in our hearts.

Stories and clever novelties which they will release during the performances of the Dixie Minstrels, at the Carnegie Library Hall, on Friday, May 5, at 8 o'clock. There will be a chorus of 20 voices and some real stunts when the Skoff brothers take the boards, that is all will make the show one of the greatest hits of local participation. The intermissions will be enlivened up with jazz concerts by Kiferlo's orchestra. Another act of special mention will be that of the "Toy Boys," consisting of five string instruments and two soloists which will bring down the house when it comes to tickling the strings. Soloists will be Herbert Mills, Lester Range, Bill Bailey, Walter Guard, Clifford Pitchford and John Sliger. Jane M. Southard, Jr., is interceptor, with Lester Range and John Sliger as end men. There will be a monologue by Harry Soxman, and stump speeches by Alan Cheeks and Earl Winter. Miss Jane Halvriter will be seen in a classical dance and Miss Katherine

Bert Shopp, comedian.

McGinnis will sing. Indications are that the audience will draw a large crowd with a large number of out-of-town residents in attendance. The ticket sale has been good, and those that have failed to secure tickets should do so at once. Tickets can be had at Crowley-Metzler shoe store, Y. M. C. A., Clark's Drug Store and Keagy's Drug Store. The show will be given for the benefit of Troop No. 3, Boy Scouts.

When "Winter" comes in your life, and your earning power is greatly reduced or entirely gone, will you have only reserves, funds to weather the blasts? At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

The Dempsey-Carpentier fight pictures, the feature attraction at this theatre today, are attracting large crowds at all performances. The remarkable fact that stands out prominently throughout New Jersey, New York and elsewhere where the film has been exhibited is that the "best people" have come, crowding to the different theatres throughout the showing, consumed with an intense desire to see the long-heralded and much-talked-about duel between the foremostistic representatives of America and France. Theatre telephone bells have been rung incessantly by prominent citizens—doctors, lawyers, judges, civic officials and society women—asking the same question: "When does your next performance start?" There are many reasons for this tremendous interest on the part of all classes of the community. The five reels of the picture, the running time of which is about an hour and a half, are not entirely devoted to the fight itself. The film is, in part, a picturization of the training of the principals, covering several months.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday a Charles Ray production will be shown.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"I CAN EXPLAIN," a Metro picture, is the principal attraction today and tomorrow at this theatre. Garet Hughes plays the role of Jimmy Berry, junior partner in the firm of Dawson & Berry, who plan to open a branch in a South American port. Jimmy finds himself in a mess of complications when he is accused by his partner of attempting to take his wife, Dorothy Dawson, from him. It is at this point that the explanations begin, but they do not end until all three have reached South America where life is just one surprise and explanation after another. But it's rattling good fun and in addition there are thrills and excitement and a climax that tops off the whole plot in splendid fashion.

In addition to Mr. Hughes the cast in "I Can Explain," includes Grace Darmond, Martine Burkett, Herbert Hayes, Victor (Slim) Potel, Harry Lorraine, Nelson McDowell and many others. It is a George D. Baker production for S-L.

THE ORPHEUM.

"SHAM," a Paramount picture, with Ethel Clayton in the stellar role, is the feature picture today and tomorrow.

A delicious satire on "gentle grafters," people who neglect to pay their bills, is "Sham," a comedy of decided appeal. Perhaps the most striking feature of the offering is the smooth and even quality of the acting. From the charming star, Ethel Clayton, down to the most inconspicuous "extras," the cast is perfectly chosen. It's sad indeed that one finds in a single film such capable fun-makers as Sylvia Ashton, Theodore Roberts and Walter Hiers. And when to these are added Clyde Philmore, Arthur Crowe, Helen Dunbar, Carrie Clark Tard and Eunice Burnham, all equally capable, the combination is irresistible.

The story is one of exceptional strength. It tells of Katherine Van Piser of high social position, many debts and no money. Shall she marry for money or for love? It is an old, old question—but one that no loses its interest. It is a production that will make creditors and all others chuckle with mirth.

To be found either in plain shades or two-toned combinations—serpentine and jade green, edel blue, orchid and tangerine. Priced $12.75.

WRIGHT-METZLER STORE interprets Service simply as a matter of giving you the thing you want at the time you want it—at a price you can easily afford to pay.

These are times when every woman craves stylish things to wear but feels that she should be economical in buying them. So this Store carries out its ideal of service by offering you these special groups of Spring Apparel at savings that are really worth your while.

The groups are made up of garments taken from our regular stocks—suits, coats, capes and dresses, authoritatively styled and carefully made by some of the country's leading designers. There are no "Sale Lots" among them. They are all garments made to satisfy, not merely sell—garments that even the most discriminating woman would be proud to call her own.

The offering is a strained effort to move goods. Rather it is an honest attempt to be of real service to the women of this district by giving them the thing they need without imposing any strain whatever upon the family purse.

The recent Anniversary Sale gave you an idea of what to expect when we advertise Apparel Values. It was distinctly a revelation to the women of Fayette—and many was the wardrobe that was refurbished at a trifling cost.

This is a like occasion—but only by visiting the Apparel Sections will you be able to realize its full importance.

We urge you to make that visit as soon as you can. You will be more than repaid—and delighted!
